Irish Academic Press Ltd, Ireland, 2015. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. This is the first biography of Sir Henry Augustus Robinson, who, in addition to his duties as a senior civil servant in Dublin s Custom House between 1898 and 1922, acted as unofficial adviser to British ministers on many of the major political issues of the day. A consummate administrator, Robinson was responsible for a new and democratic local government system and for supervising infrastructural services in Ireland. Yet, in defiance of British civil service protocols, he became a critical figure who had a significant political effect on Ireland s administration during the crucial years of 1912 to 1922. Comprehensive and detailed, the book uncovers Robinson s official and unofficial life and work through his role in the Home Rule controversy, the conscription crisis, and the evolving reality of partition. Emerging as a man who loved Ireland and described as a reforming Unionist, Sir Henry Augustus Robinson was a man with a high sense of duty, allied to a progressive optimism about Ireland s destiny. This remarkable biography brings Robinson to the fore in a time of momentous events and issues in the last pre-Independence decade. [Subject: Biography, Irish Studies, Political History.
