Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2013. Paperback. Condition: New. Ron Gale (illustrator). Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Cowboy poems about 13 year old boy -Ropin a moose, -At a loggin camp up in the Highwood Range, Where I worked as a kid; I tried to arrange; My thoughts on loggin , and of cowboyin and such. I worked there at loggin , while keepin in touch, With the cowboy aspects; of usin my rope; On anythin movin with ever a hope, Of me catchin a critter, a dog, or a cat, Or a chicken, a mouse, or even a bat. One mornin while ridin along on my horse, I heard a slight noise, and I spotted the source, A big old cow moose wandered up close into view. So I flipped out my rope; and I caught her too. About a young boy coming in contact with a large grizzly bear on a one way trail; -Ridin by myself on a narrow goat trail, On the side of a mountain where rocks prevail. The trail was narrow with a hundred foot drop, On the near horse side as we re nearin the top. Around a sharp bend I came right face to face, With a grizzly bear who halted my pace. My horse was shakin ; not the only one scared. I had no rifle and I wasn t prepared. About starting a wild curly gelding; -The sun was about to crest the far horizon on a fresh Alberta morn . As I tacked up a -wildy- curly gelding, with a saddle not for worn. He was a North American Curly caught wild on the plains. As a six year old he was caught and gelded and now to use his brains. He stood there...
