Excerpt from Mademoiselle de la Seigliere: Comedie en Quatre Actes IN making up the notes for this edition of Mie. De la Se: eglz ere it was necessary to bear in mind that the play has been recommended for the courses preparatory to the New England colleges. In deciding on the general nature and scope of the commentary I have been especially influenced by the General Remarks of Mr. Grandgent, in his Synopsis of the French and German Instruction in the Boston High Schools (school Document No. 14, a pamphlet which ought to receive the careful attention of every instructor of elementary and secondary classes. In the matter of details I was much aided by the edition of Mlle. De la Seizglz ere by K. A. Martin Hartmann (leipzig, For many valuable suggestions and criticisms I am indebted to Mr. S. W. Chry, of D. C. Heath Co., and to Prof. Cohn, of Harvard University, to the latter particularly in regard to the literary and sociological import of the play. The definitions of legal terms have been revised...
